

About the Author

photo credit: Rick Ciaburri Studio

Dorothy Gonick loved growing up on an Iowa farm. She taught in Iowa and later in Connecticut for many years. Dorothy began writing stories for those first and second graders igniting her passion for storytelling that continues today.

After retiring from the classroom in 1987, she followed a fascination with Chinese Brush painting and Haiku poetry, combining them in her lovely note cards. Writing and illustrating a newspaper column called Nature as a Mirror for ten years was an outlet to express her love of the outdoors.

Dorothy now enjoys living in Hinsdale, Massachusetts with her daughter Diane, and family.