History

Between 2002 and 2009 several issues were created

There were 11 issues created by all family members that highlight a specific family or event. Since it has been over 10 years since last issue, I will start with the next one. Currently I maintain a family website <https://adair.family/> I will start with some aspects of website.

The Oak was chosen to be the official State of Iowa Tree.

by John Adair

This tree was so abundant throughout America that it has become the National Tree of the United States.

For the new settlers to Iowa and the USA, the Oak trees provided shelter, food, and nesting cover for many of Iowa's animals and birds. The acorns (the nuts of oak trees) are favorite food for wild turkeys, pheasants, quail, wood ducks, raccoons, squirrels, chipmunks, deer, blue Jays, nuthatches, grackles, several kind of wood peckers, and other life sustaining wildlife

THE ADAIR FAMILY FARM IS THE FIRST FARM WHEN ONE IS ENTERING FROM MISSOURI ON US HIGHWAY 169.

This farm has been in the Adair Family since 1891. This farm is a Gateway to Iowa. With this establishment "Oak Land" it becomes a living icon for the sturdiness and strength of its citizens.

THANK YOU ALL

My grandmother Mary Bailey Adair had records that were passed down. I also find much research conducted by many others including Arthur Bailey, Dewey Adair and Naomi Adair Hendrickson. Of course I have not named all my sources but know that I think of all of them.

Some "facts" about descendants

The ADAIR family name in my online tree goes back to John ADAIR (1732-1827). He was born in Antrim, Northern Ireland and died in Knoxville, Tennessee. This is difficult to verify with so many named "JOHN ADAIR".

The next generation down is more likely true. My 4th great-grandfather John Adair was born 15 Feb 1750 in Limerick, County Down, Ireland but that may be Down, County Limerick, Ireland. He died 1 Nov 1824 in Madison County, Ohio. I find 2 marriages, Mary O'Donnell in 1773 (5 children) and Elizabeth McKnight in 1791 (6 children).
